

Industry

The healthcare industry itself is needed in the pursue of ever improved treatments of patients. The improvements – which are in focus - are wide ranging in fact. They look at all sorts of aspects, to mention but a few:

- Improving mechanical product performance
- Improving hygienic product performance
- Improving logistical and environmental product performance
- Improving unit and total cost

The industry also has a significant role in improving the safety of use. This is perhaps the most difficult one, because it – to a large extend – involves user-patents, training, habits and customs as well as clinical guidelines and user instructions.

Throughout Curas, we are systematic in our approach to industry. We understand fully that without the commitment of the industry (funding & priority) general healthcare will not improve to the extend that is needed.

In this major task, the industry know that they can find a long-term partnership in Curas.
